During his 35 year career, companies such as Air France, Avaya, Lucent, IBM, Homestore.com, PNC Bank, Bank Five, Four Seasons Sunrooms, and Radio Disney, the Better Business Bureau and IBM have taken advantage of his programs.

Andy’s interest in non-verbal interaction started in 1986 with a training seminar called the “The Unspoken Word”. In 1993 The Philadelphia Inquirer featured him as an expert in the field on non-verbal conversation.

This was accomplished through extensive research and decades of observing business and personal scenarios. His knowledge enabled The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia University to feature Andy in their guest lecturer programs.

BodyChats, is the ultimate program to add 80% to interaction’s 7% verbal component to create effective communication. It contains the learning process protected by three US Copyrights issued to Mr. Gateriewictz.

“The most important part of communication is to understand what is not being said.”
